1. Class/Seminar Teacher Evaluation

This survey requests your feedback on two separate aspects of your learning experience, split into three sections. The first section asks for your views on your teacher’s class/seminar teaching. The second section asks for your views on the course as a whole at this point in time. Finally, the third section asks for some information about you, to aid analysis.

We recognise that this term has been particularly challenging for everyone due to the wider public health situation, with disruption experienced by both students and teaching staff. The School is continually striving to deliver the best possible educational experience despite these challenges and your views about your learning experience at LSE are a valuable source of information about this. The results will be used to help improve the teaching and learning experience for you and your peers and to identify good practice.

The School assumes that your response is broadly positive if you 'mostly agree' or 'definitely agree' with a statement.

1.1) Do the answers you supply below relate to the teacher from whom you have received the majority of your class/seminar teaching this term? The teacher’s name, course title and group number (where relevant) are provided in the invitation email you have received for the survey.

1.11) 1.6 Overall, I am satisfied with the class/seminar teaching by this teacher on this course.

1.12) 1.7 Please comment below on aspects of this teacher's class/seminar teaching you think were particularly helpful.

- 10/10 great teacher. I hope Tom becomes a professor some day.
- Coming from a non-quantitative background, Tom has been instrumental in informing my understanding of the course content. He is approachable and able to simplify the concepts into digestible terms. He is also interested in focusing on the areas WE need the most help on, and adjusts the seminar instruction as needed.
- He always makes people feel really welcome to ask questions and seems to genuinely care that we understand the material and enjoy the course
- He clearly knows about the subject he is teaching and has the skill to explain it in simple and accesible terms. He is also closed to students, which facilitates debate in class
- He emphasized more into the critical point.
- I appreciate the way he did not force anyone to answer his questions, and encouraged every response.
- The structure of the seminar involves asking questions at each step of answering the problem set which is very helpful and reiterates previously done concepts. Tom explains them as many times as required.
- Tom is an amazing teacher.
- Tom is fantastic. Before joining the MPA I was nervous and hesitant about my ability to handle 455, and working with Tom has made it one of my favorite courses this year. He is approachable, excited to discuss the content, and genuinely invested in how each of us in the class is understanding. If anyone is confused, he has another explanation or way of thinking ready to discuss in order to enhance our understanding. While none of our assignments have gotten feedback, Tom is great about giving feedback live and encouraging our ways of thinking critically, even if they're not in the exact right direction. It is easy to participate in class because even the wrong answers receive an encouraging response and Tom is able to work through were we went wrong with patience and enthusiasm. Of all the resources we've had for 455, discussing content with Tom in seminar or the help sessions has contributed to my learning the most. I definitely have a long way to go with 455, but working with Tom has made me more confident in my intuition and ability to think critically and apply the tools we've learned in lecture.

- Tom is patient with questions, careful in his explanations, and good at connecting the course content to real-world issues. He is generally very available for questions and concerns regarding the course.
- Tom is super engaging and thoughtful in his teaching. He creates a very comfortable and inclusive teaching environment. I also appreciate that he genuinely listens to people and tries to incorporate their answers (regardless if they are right or wrong) into the class.
- Tom was always very prepared for the classes. The slides he and Martina put together were very clear and made it extremely easy to go back and revise the content. He was also always available during office hours and even a few minutes after class to answer questions about that week's assignment.

1.13) 1.7b Please comment below on aspects of this teacher's class/seminar teaching you think could be improved.

- He could make more of an effort to engage students so it's not usually the same 3 students answering questions.
- I think the seminars could be a bit more dynamic. At times, when none of the students knew the answer to the question, an awkward silence would emerge until someone finally ventured a response.
- If the time for the seminar could be increased to 1.5 hours we could cover the whole problem set and help sessions could just be used for specific questions/ doubts.
- My only complaint is regarding the amount of time we have with him in class. Every week he mentions he wont have enough time to cover the whole problem set and/or rushes because he is running out of time and wants to cover something else. Going to the office hours is not equivalent to seminars, since we have only 20 minutes and its a few days after (we are likely to forget some of the doubts we had in class, for example). Going to the help sessions is not equivalents to seminars either, since its a larger group, its online and because of this the dynamic tends to change a bit. It is frustrating that we pay 26k pounds per year and dont have enough time with our professors in class. 1 hour is not enough to learn something new every week.
- No recommendations for improvement - I only wish our seminar was an hour so we had more time to dig into content with Tom regularly.
- None, favourite teacher at LSE.
- Not under Tom's control - but the seminar needs to be longer. It would also be helpful to get feedback on our problem sets, as we're unable to cover all of the questions within the normal allotted seminar time (perhaps following the PP440 model, where we get feedback on two random problem sets per term).
- it's a really minor point but i would appreciate more frequent feedback on the answers we submit for problem sets. I recognise this might not actually be within Tom's control.

- No comments here.

3.25) 2.14 Overall, I am satisfied with my experience on this course.

3.26) 2.15 Would you recommend this course to other students?

3.27) 2.16 Please comment below on aspects of this course you think were particularly good.

- Professors and TA very good at explaining not-so-easy concepts. The topics are well organised and easy to follow
- The course is rigorous, good at connecting to real world issues, and the problem sets were helpful. I wish we had more time in seminars to go over the problem sets.
- The range of topics covered in this course was excellent. The papers selected to address the topics as well as the textbooks used in the course were extremely helpful to understand the content.
- the concepts we learn are really interesting and it's taught with an understanding that it's difficult but that you can improve

3.28) 2.16b Please comment below on aspects of this course you think could be improved.

- Greater clarity on the degree of depth a problem set question requires in its answer (broadly inconsistent across problem sets)
- I do believe the course could go a bit deeper. For example, we do not look at time series which I think is important to analysis public policy issues. Also, the math behind the models is important to fully understand them, if not the understanding is very shallow. I have the luck to have some background on statistics and econometrics, but I imagine being it very hard for people that does not.
- I think the LT policy memo and group presentation should be combined into one project, 20% of our grade, where we work in groups to identify an interest from the World Bank data, and work together to run the regression, write the memo, and present on it. I feel it would be better for our learning as IRL we will most likely be presenting and writing up the same analyses, not different ones, and working in groups.
- I think the course material is a bit drawn out. In other words, I feel that for an intro level course it should we should have the most relevant concepts and the course should only be a semester long. If individuals are interested in learning more they can pursue elective classes.
- I think the last two topics of the course (cost-benefit analysis and valuation) belong to a different course. While both topics are very interesting, I believe we could address both topics in a course aimed specifically at measuring the costs and benefits of a policy intervention. I think we could have traded cost-benefit analysis for a section on time series methods, for example.
- It's been frustrating this term that we have had weeks where the material in the problem set hasn't been delivered yet, so syncing that up better is a priority. Additionally if we could have longer seminars (90 mins) it would be helpful as we always run over. and more feedback on the problem sets (I don't think I've had any feedback yet this term on my PP455 problem sets)
- Only thing I would change is having a bit more time for the seminars, maybe 1.5 hrs / week or 2 hours / week.
